BULL MOOSE REVOLT MAY COST WHITMAN HIS PLACE IN N. Y.

EFFECT OF ROOSEVELT-PARKS-FLINN COMBINE IS DISAPPOINTING.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Effort by the Roosevelt-Parks-Flinn combination to deliver the progressive vote to Hughes is meeting with not disappointment in states of the east and middle west.

New York, because of the importance of its electoral vote next fall, is attracting particular attention, and the progressives here are not following orders. They are flourishing in a great tangle with the New York county committee leading the fight to preserve the party and prevent endorsement of Hughes.

Whitman's Place Imperiled.
The governorship is also at stake, and over with Hughes.

and it promises to play a large part in the national campaign. Governor Whitman, who is to be renominated by the Republicans, is not believed to be particularly strong with the masses, and his friends are plainly alarmed by the turn events have taken, as his weakness also makes weakness for Hughes, who was nominated by Whitman at the national convention. The progressive committee of New York counts just one on record with a strong endorsement of Samuel Seabury, a democrat, for governor. It appears at this time that Seabury will be the democratic nominee. He is popular with the people because of his progressive and humanitarian views. He is the sort of candidate to attract progressive and independent voters. With the progressives tendering him their support the outlook for Whitman and Hughes is all but hopeless.

Hope to Force Resolution.
The progressive state committee will meet July 22, at which time Roosevelt and Parks hope to force through a resolution endorsing Hughes. Bainbridge Colby, who nominated Roosevelt at the Chicago convention, is leading the opposing forces. He believes Whitman a better progressive than Hughes and Seabury a better conservative than Whitman. The convention has been called to state, at Syracuse, which may discourage attendance from New York city, where the revolt against Hughes seems strongest. But from Buffalo and other cities comes report of revolt against delivery to Hughes and a red hot time is in prospect, whatever the resolutions may say.

NEW ICE PLANT AT RIETH IS RAPIDLY BEING CONSTRUCTED

RAILROAD MEN THERE ARE TALKING OF HOLDING A BIG CELEBRATION.

Old Fashioned House-Warming May Be Held As Soon As Structure Is Complete; Place Will Be In Use by August 1; Robert Smith Substitutes As Car Clerk.

(East Oregonian Special.)
RIETH, Ore., July 18.—Robert Smith is the new car clerk at the depot, relieving Mr. Martin during his vacation this week.

Construction of the new ice plant of the Pacific Fruit Express Co. is progressing rapidly and Mr. Vogler expects to have it in service by Aug. 1. However, there is some delay on account of the non-arrival of some material that may prevent its completion at that time. It has been suggested that a good old-fashioned house warming and dance would be a fitting ceremony to celebrate the occasion and Mr. Vogler says "go to it, boys, it won't be the first one dedicated that way."

BOGTIEGGER CAUGHT IN ACT OF CARRYING BOOZE

SMASHES EVIDENCE BUT IS ARRESTED BY MARSHAL AT PORTLAND.

PORTLAND, Ore., July 18.—When good Indians get together the weather is likely to be on hand all right, unless some one happens to bring along a few bottles of firewater. All of which is to say that the big Indian celebration held on the Umatilla reservation last week would have been a trifle more peaceful if Guy Hayes and John Thomas hadn't previously communicated with California, for a purpose.

Since the first of the year the formerly thriving business of picking up bootleggers and people who introduced liquor on the reservation has been a dull one. Last week, however, the Indians held potlatch, or something of that sort. The officers feared that business would pick up. They watched the express office.

Guy and another man got in a shipment of liquor. The officers in an automobile watched them. When they crossed the line the agent went to arrest them. Both cut and ran. Hayes started across a plowed field. The automobile couldn't very well follow. It went around. When Hayes came out of the field there it was. Hayes started back. The officers saw him pull something from under his coat. He swung it against a fence post.

The men dashed up to the post. It was wet with whiskey. Fragments of a broken bottle were scattered over the ground. They stopped to gather the evidence. Hayes didn't stop.

He might still have been going if

Frank Berry, deputy United States marshal, hadn't gone up to the reservation on other business. Hayes knew the other officials. He was on the lookout for them. But he didn't know Berry. He was planning to make a final get-away. Everything was ready. Imagine his chagrin when the deputy walked up and arrested him. Hayes was brought to Portland.

With him was John Thomas, an Indian. Thomas was the only other person to fall for the lure of the exhilarating juice. He is a wealthy Indian, living on the reservation. At the time of the potlatch the officers found a supply of liquor in the house. When they went to arrest him it looked like trouble, but Thomas finally went along.
